The Route

The Two Moors Way is a long-distance walking route between Ivybridge on the southern edge of Dartmoor and Lynmouth on the North Coast of Exmoor. It has a total length of 102 miles (163 km), making it an ideal week's walk.

The Way links the only two National Parks in southern England, and crosses both of them north-south. Not surprisingly, it passes through landscape of exceptionally high quality. Not only does this include the high moorland of some of the Dartmoor and Exmoor sections, but also the deep and wooded valleys of the moorland edges and between the moors, unspoilt rural scenery with a remote and tranquil feel difficult to find elsewhere in modern times.

Further Walking Links

The Two Moors Way is the major north-south walking route across Devon. At Ivybridge, the southern end of the route, it links with the Erme-Plym Trail to Wembury on the south coast. This creates a superb coast to coast route crossing the whole of Devon. An information pack on the Erme-Plym Trail is available.

In addition, Devon has a whole network of walking routes, some of which link to the Two Moors Way.

The map shows some of the other links, but a free leaflet, 'Making Tracks - Walking Trails in Devon' is also available and shows how they all connect. This leaflet may be obtained from the Devon Tourist Information Service, PO Box 55, Barnstaple EX32 8YR, telephone 0870 60 85 531.

Public Transport

The ideal way to walk the Two Moors Way is to leave the car at home and use public transport to access the route. Bus services may be used to reach both ends of the route, Ivybridge and Lynmouth. Ivybridge may also be reached by train from Plymouth.

Lynmouth may be reached by bus from Taunton; alternatively by bus from Barnstaple, itself on a branch railway line from Exeter.

In addition, Morchard Road, at the centre of the route, is on the Exeter-Barnstaple branch rail line.

Various other locations along the route may also be reached by less frequent bus services.

Bus information for most of the route can also be obtained from Traveline, telephone 0870 608 2 608.

Train information is available on the National Rail Enquiry line, telephone (08457) 484950.
